Dear Comcasters:

As you may have read in today's newspapers, the AT&T Board of Directors rejected our proposal to merge with AT&T Broadband. Importantly, the AT&T Board also said they have decided to delay the vote on their broadband tracking stock proposal.

Since our July 8 offer, their shareholders have responded favorably to our proposal, and AT&T stock has risen dramatically, adding about $14 billion in market valuation to AT&T. In their press release yesterday, AT&T stated that management will "explore financial and strategic alternatives." We assume that we will be part of that process. Consequently, we see this announcement as positive news for our company.

During the last ten days we have had dozens of meetings with major AT&T and Comcast shareholders. During these visits we have been struck by how positively our company is viewed and how confident investors are in our operating team. That should make all of you proud to work for Comcast.

Our proposal is off to a very good start. We appreciate your support during this process and will keep you updated in the weeks ahead.

Sincerely,

/s/ Brian L. Roberts
